TORONTO'S OPPORTUNITY

he $100,000 Membership Campaign of the nto Federation of Jewish Philanthropies held during the last week in May is being ched at an opportune time, since on June he twenty-second conference of National sh Social Service will be held here, and be followed by the fifty-first conference of general organization known as the Na- l Conference of Social Service. With an ased membership for the coming year and fore a more liberal budget for the con- ent societies of Federation as a result of campaign, the Jewish community of nto will be better able to welcome the erences and play host to the hundreds of sh men and women social workers of the es and Canada who are devoting their to the improvement of social conditions. uring the seven years that Toronto's eration has been in existence considerable ress has been made in caring for the sick needy in our midst. The work of the ily Welfare Board has been standardized. newly arriving Ukrainian refuge immi- ts are being taken care of. Hundreds of ests for personal service not requiring the g of relief, but nevertheless of great value he persons asking for help, are being lled. The new Orphanage has been in ation for more than a year. The work of Boys' Club House and the Girls' Club se, as well as the two Summer Camps have ady exerted a marked influence upon the of the younger generation. The work of Maternity Aid Society, the Boot and Shoe ety, the Sewing School and the Free al Society also deserve the highest com- dation. But what is most significant is fact that the Jewish community is begin- to understand the underlying principles Federation and to co-operate with its ies.

evertheless, in spite of this encouraging ress, there is considerable room for rovement. The Jewish community of nto is comparatively new. It does not e the traditions and the organizations and aps also the wealth that communities of lar size in the United States have. Yet roblems are just as acute. If anything, are more pronounced. On the other d, there isn't a single city in the States anywhere near forty thousand Jews that along with so small a budget for philan- py as does Toronto.

he $100,000 asked for by the Campaign mmittee is not too much. Federation will have to watch its expenditure very closely considerably more money in order properly to take care of its work. So do the other agencies. Furthermore, it is proposed that a liberal allowance be made to the Mount Sinai Hospital and to other organizations willing to co-operate with Federation in order that only one appeal for funds be made during the year.

Federation has proven its value to the community. It cannot, however, continue to operate on a totally inadequate income. Either it is worth-while and should be supported whole-heartedly or it may as well be scrapped entirely.

The coming campaign will show whether our community is to go forward or backward. This is both an opportunity and a crisis. What we do next month will decide the future standing of our philanthropic work. Furthermore, what we do will be broadcasted over the entire country, and the results will be watched by the representatives of every progressive community in America, who will be Toronto's guests at the two conferences of social service to be held here in June.

FREEDOM HATH NO WORTHIER SON THAN HE

With these words, paraphrazed from the poet's own line, we hail the memory of Byron, lord in the realm, prince among poets and men, on the one hundredth anniversary of his death. Wherever English is read and loved, there roses are being planted in the ever-enlarging hedge of roses which are with time, profusely entwining around the poet who wished to be remembered only by the lines he wrote in England's own land and language.

Byron, like Poe, has been much misunderstood by the critics, who judge poetry by orthodox canons and formulas. Byron and Poe have been underrated because the puritanical critics were unable to dissociate the poets from the creative genius with which they were endowed. Because they disliked the moral and intellectual character of the poets they denied them their legitimate place among the immortals—in spite of the fascinating hold these poets have had and have on the reading public.

Poe was an inveterate drinker, and died in a drunken delirium, whilst Byron was a libertine and a Don Juan. Yet now that the nineteenth century has turned into the twentieth, it is becoming increasingly evident that England had its Byron and America its Poe.

Byron was undoubtedly a care-free genius, of whom it is said that he never censored, re-read or re-wrote the outpouring of his muse. Consequently his work does not possess that chisled finish of the more classical poets. But few compare with him in the fervidness of his revolutionary thought and passion. Byron was cynical and satirical and gifted He possessed a keen insight into human nature and character and had a broad knowledge of the world.

As we read Byron, and we profess to be partial to him, we are particularly impressed with his passionate despisal of CANT. His was not the purest nor noblest of souls; nevertheless he had a soul that could not and would not tolerate cant in any form. Perhaps for this reason he was excommunicated from Society with a capital "S." No better exposure nor more brutally frank denunciation of the buncombe of modern militarism is to be found than that which is contained in Don Juan. He was equally outspoken in regard to the hypocrisies and conventional lies about religion, politics and the social set of England of his day. His was primarily and elementarily a free spirit. It was for this spirit that the world loves him most, and for which he will be long remembered. Because Byron loved ancient Hellas and all it stood for with a romantic passion, he dazzled the world by his expedition to Greece to restore to freedom the Greece and Greeks whose kinship with the Greece and the Greeks of old is one of name only. In the cause of liberty this heroic spirit lost his life in the marshes of Missolonghi, which was one of the chief strongholds in the Greek war of liberation. In this place where Byron laboured for Hellenic freedom, a monument was unveiled the other day in honour of the centenary of his death, by the Greek premier Papanastasion.

For us Jews Byron has a unique interest. He will ever be remembered as the author of the always-to-live "Hebrew Melodies." These beautiful poems were the outpouring of his free spirit which went out in sympathy for the "tribes of the wandering foot and weary breast."

A lover of freedom he desired to see this wandering people re-established on its sacred soil, which he loved even as he loved Hellas. We feel certain that had there been a Zionist movement a century ago, Byron would have thrown himself into the cause for the re-establishment of the Jewish homeland in Palestine, with all his romantic ardour and zeal. Few poets have so aptly phrased the tragedy of Jewish wanderings as has Byron in the lines,

"The mild dove hath her nest, the fox his cave, Mankind their country, Israel but the grave."

The Nationalist Jews have shown their instinctive affinity for Byron in many ways. There is a beautiful translation of Byron's poems into Hebrew, which finds much favour with readers of Hebrew literature.

Byron's was a free spirit—not like d'Annunzio's, which is narrowly chauvinistic. Byron's was universal cosmopolitan. He was Every now and again we have fresh reasons for suspecting that Bialik, the Hebrew poet whom the REVIEW once slew in a special number before consulting him, is not dead at all. This time we hear from Palestine where he is furthering a publication business, that he thinks Zionist organization propaganda is insufficient. Long ago we granted that Bialik is not dead as per our insouciant announcement, but that Zionist or any other propaganda is insufficient we can't agree even with Bialik, even to make up for the thoughtless death one of our writers once dealt him in print.

For there is no such thing as insufficient propaganda of any kind. It is so sufficient that there is not an English-Jewish paper in the world which could not conceal itself weekly under tons of heterogeneous propaganda were it not for kindly waste baskets and handy furnaces. To print it all new papers would have to be started or old papers dedicated entirely to the purpose. Now if Bialik had said that Zionist organization propaganda is usually neither good nor effective, representing as it does quantity not quality writing, we should be in agreement, for not a week goes by that we do not wonder how it is that so many employees get paid so much good money for so much poor writing that they expect the papers to print for nothing.

> "God built a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold. He carpeted it with soft rolling prairies and pillared it with thundering mountains. He studded it with soft-flowing fountains.

The glow of adventure was in their eyes and the glory of hope within their souls. And out of the labor of men and the bounty of earth, out of the prayers of men and the hopes of the world, God fashioned a nation in love, blessed it with a purpose sublime and called it 'AMERICA'!"

With the United States closing the gates to immigration, this strikes us as a bad time to release such grand words as these from the pen of Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio. If they get to Europe they may make the South Europeans long for America in the way they once longed for heaven. It's all very well to think of heaven in such terms as these. It is attainable to all good people. But the United States—well, that's something else again.

Suits have been entered by the American Jewish Relief Committee against five defendants to enforce collection of moneys pledged to the cause of World War sufferers in Europe. In numerous instances the American courts have held that a financial pledge to a charitable drive is a legal obligation and have compelled defendants to make good their pledges. Let us hope that the Relief Committee will be successful in its new suits and that the result will have a sobering effect everywhere on men who pledge elatedly in the heat of campaigns sums which they either can't or don't want to give when their temperature has receded to normal.

Forty thousand dollars has been left to the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies of New York in the will of Solomon C. Guggenheimer, who died last month at Territet, Switzerland. This was the chief bequest in a total fund of $10,000 left to various charities. Among the other Jewish charities that participate in the will are: Mount Sinai Hospital, $7,500; National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives of Denver, $2,500; $2,000 is left to the Jewish synagogue in Krumbach, Bavaria.

One of the outstanding facts in connection with the development of a wealthy Jewish leisure class in the States is the habit this class has fallen into of bequeathing large sums to charity. It is not mentioned in news of the Guggenheimer will whether the maker asked that money be set aside for the saying of kaddish. If he did it will be the least of the ways he will be remembered. The most important will be those by which he made himself a benefactor to his people, cognizant as he was that with the privilege of money always goes responsibility to the rest of humanity.

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT PERMITS RE-OPENING OF ORTHODOX JEWISH ACADEMY

Riga (J.T.A.)—The Moscow Government has given permission to the Rabbi of Lubavitz to reopen his Yeshiba, or academy for the study of the Bible and the Talmud. The academy is to be re-established at Rostov-on-Dom.

The leaders of the Yevsekzia, the Jewish section of the Communist Party, were peeved to learn of the permission given by the central government, and the success attained by orthodox Jewry in Russia, which rid itself of the difficulties imposed by the Yevsekia, by a direct appeal to the central government.

The permission to reopen the academy was given to the Rabbi on condition that he introduce into the Yeshiba a number of secular subjects, and provide for conditions in his academy similar to those prevailing in the orthodox Jewish academies existing now in Leningrad and Kiev.

Federation Meeting Plans Campaign

Announcement of a $100,000 Membership Campaign to be held during the last week in May by the Toronto Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, was made at the seventh annual meeting of Federation held at the Primrose Club last Tuesday evening. Charles Draimin is to act as campaign chairman, Edmund Scheuer, treasurer, and Abraham Cohen, secretary. Louis Brenner of New York is to be the campaign director.

The meeting was the most enthusiastic Federation ever had. The ballroom of the Primrose Club was crowded with the members who heard the reports readered by the presidents of the constituent societies.

Charles Draimin
Chairman of Campaign Committee

The report of Mr. Charles Draimin, treasurer, showed that Federation had spent $53,165 during the past year. Of this total, $26,852 went to the Family Welfare Board. Of several hundred families who had been given relief allowances during the past two years, only sixty-two families are still being taken care of, and all the others are self-supporting.

Rabbi Barnett R. Brickner, president of Federation, in his annual message, reviewed the progress that has been made during his administration and pointed out that the needs of the constituent societies for the coming year are in excess of Federation's present income. "The time has come," said Rabbi Brickner, "when the community will no longer stand for wasteful and haphazard methods of raising funds for charitable work. The people are getting tired of being approached by a dozen and one different organizations, with the sale of tickets or ads for innumerable entertainments, benefits or balls. Although the causes for which these benefits are run are worthy ones, it should be possible for an organization to raise funds in a more dignified and efficient manner.

"In the campaign that our Federation will conduct during the week of May 26th," continued Rabbi Brickner, "we hope to eliminate as many unnecessary appeals and drives as possible. The Federation Board is willing to include in its budget the needs of several important organizations deserving community support, but not yet affiliated with Federation. This Campaign will show whether the people prefer one united drive rather than a half dozen separate haphazard appeals."

Louis Brenner, of New York, Campaign director, outlined the need for greater community support for Federation activities. He reviewed the development of Jewish social work in the States, and showed that the time has come when Toronto must take its place as a full-fledged Jewish community.

"The work of the Federation," said

Louis Brenner
Campaign Director

Reports were rendered by Mr. S. B. Kaufman, executive director of Federation; Mrs. C. Draimin, president, Family Welfare Board; Mrs. M. Mehr, Jewish Children's Home; Mrs. S. Helpert, Hebrew Ladies' Maternity Aid and Child Welfare; Mr. Mort Levi, Big Brother Movement; Miss Kate Joseph, Big Sister Movement; Miss Lulu Levy, Fresh Air Home; Mrs. B. M. Speyer, Hebrew Young Ladies Boot and Shoe Society; Mrs. S. Weber, Hebrew Free Burial Society; Mrs. P. Hermant, Jewish Girls' Club; Mr. H. Levi, Jewish Boys' Club.

The nominating committee brought in the following names for the Board of Trustees of Federation, and they were unanimously elected for a period of three years: Edmund Scheuer, L. Simon, Abraham Cohen, M. Gelber, D. Lavine, S. Kronick, R. Raphael, H. Levi, A. Rogul, N. Phillips.

Short talks were made by past presidents Edmund Scheuer and E. Pullan.

THE KEHILLAH OF KEDAINIAI
ZYDU BENDRUMONES,
TARYBA, POLAND

March 24, 1924.
18th day of Adar B. 5687.

To Rabbi Dr. Barnett R. Brickner:

In reply to your letter of December 12, 1923, I am honoured to inform you that at a meeting of the Kehillah of our city, which took place on the 1st day of Adair B. 5684, it was decided to devote the legacy of a house and estate in our city, left by the late Bernard Goldstein, of Toronto, of which you informed us, for the purpose of an orphanage home. The old orphanage in our city has been in existence for 24 years, but never had a building of its own. Through the gift of Mr. Goldstein it is possible to secure a permanent home for the orphanage and put it on a secure basis. It has been dedicated as a lasting memory to the departed and his family.

With friendly greetings and in gratitude for your deep interest in the holy matter, we, the undersigned, remain,

Respectfully yours,
ZEVI HEIFETZ, President,
BEN-ZION GADIOH, Secretary, of the Kehillah.

EDITOR'S NOTE.— The late Bernard Goldstein died last October and had been a resident of Toronto for many years. He was president of the Goldstein Manufacturing Company and the inventor of the gold bracelet and the Stay-Lock cuff button. He was born in Kedainiai, to which city he left the house and estate that has now been used for an orphanage.

EDITOR,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

This morning's and this evening's local papers feature articles that "Jews didn't crucify Christ," published at a time when the country is celebrating Easter.

In the car which carried the writer homeward, a correligionist was urging the case, evidently unwelcomed, upon an un-Jewish companion, to all appearances equally to the annoyance of others nearby whom he would not permit to escape earshot. On return home the writer had to divert his Christian landlord from the subject.

Without any intent or even suggestion of criticism of those worthy and learned rabbis who discoursed so profoundly upon this subject to their own communities and those more enlightened seekers after truth of other denominations who were sufficiently broad-minded as to attend their lectures, one cannot refrain from sounding a warning against press publicity and indiscriminate public use of the Jewish line of defence such as above recounted. Defence will often constitute itself "offence" unless waged in the right place by able counsel. It is not always wise for a layman to hand over to others that which his physician has prescribed for his own personal use. The old French proverb, "S'accuse qu'il excuse" (He who excuses, accuses) still lives to-day.

These lines probably may clash with the views of others; the writer also realizes that his own communal standing scarcely ordains him as a spokesman; however, feeling sincerely that his message has a purpose, he is in consequence prompted upon this occasion to break from his castle of retirement and take his place upon the ramparts amongst the heralds.

The reason he signs his name is entirely without desire for publicity, and simply on account of his distaste for anonymous letter-writing.

Yours truly,
W. H. MARSDEN.

ANTI-PASSOVER CAMPAIGN RENEWED IN RUSSIA

Parody on the Hagodah Circulated

Moscow (J.T.A.)—All preparations have been made by the Soviet officials to repeat this year the anti-religious demonstrations of last Passover and Easter. SHEA'S THEATRE

McIntyre and Heath, who head the bill at Shea's Theatre next week, are probably the most famous team of comedians on the stage, and are returning to vaudeville in probably the most famous skit the theatre has ever known. "The Georgia Minstrels."

Duci De Kerekjarto is undoubtedly one of the world's greatest violinists. Maurice Eisner will accompany him on the piano.

Ed. Healy and Allan Cross sing good songs, exceptionally well rendered.

Harry Anger and Netta Packer have a brand new act called "The Old Fool," and was written for them by Jimmy Conlin. It is in four scenes.

Gertrude Moody and Mary Duncan offer "Opera and Jazz, Inc."

Sam Berk and Janita Saun are manufacturers of snappy steps.

"Juggleland," with Fred and Anna Henning, and Shea's News Review complete the bill.

Atlanta (J.T.A.)—During an address delivered in Dublin, Ga., recently, William G. McAdoo, presidential candidate, was questioned by one of the audience concerning his attitude on the Ku Klux Klan. AMERICAN MATZOTHS MANUFACTURERS COMPETING WITH EUROPEAN BAKERS

While the Americans are trying to win the matzoths market by under-selling, the local Jewish bakers are finding refuge in the provisions of the shulchan aruth, and are trying

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION

ENTER OUR NEW COMPETITION! COME ONE! COME ALL!

All our cousins are invited to send an entry for our Passover Competition. There will be prizes for the best letters and stories, and the subject is one that I hope you will all find interesting. You are to describe a Passover party, to which you may invite any twelve of your Jewish story friends, David or Samson, Esther or little Miriam, or any of the other characters of fiction or history. It ought to be a nice party, don't you think? Because you can describe what each wore, and said, and how they acted, and whether or not they helped to entertain the other guests. So let your imagination run riot, and see what delightful hosts and hostesses you can be.... See that your letters are addressed to 319 Bay Street, Toronto, and that they do not arrive later than April 30. Here's luck!

Cousin David.

All contributions for the Junior Section must be sent to CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, 319 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario. Any girl or boy is welcome to join our section and to contribute poems, essays, stories, riddles, etc. Just fill out this little card and mail it at once.

REVIEW JUNIOR SECTION:

I would like to join the Cousin Family of the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

My name is.....

I live at.....

I am.....years of age

Welcoming a new cousin! M Dime, 203 Bathurst Street, aged ten. Won't you write a letter next time?

Dear Cousins:

Would you like to solve a mystery? Because the other day it just happened that the "Boy-who-is-just-so-high" wandered into our office just as Ye Maker of Limericks was insisting that the early morning was the very nicest time of the day. Well! it was really funny, because when he said that Cousin David (don't tell him that I said so, 'cause he mightn't like it, y'know) became quite wroth. Because, I'll let you into a secret about Cousin David....he's just a little bit lazy! He knows he shouldn't be, and we know he shouldn't be....but, he just is!!! And the reason that he didn't like to hear Ye Maker of Limericks talk about early morning walks and early morning tennis was because he wants so much to get up in time to enjoy them, but is just too lazy to do it. Don't you think it's awful? And wouldn't it be dandy if we could put our heads together and think of a very good "Waker-up" that would just do the trick for Cousin David, and send him out bright and early in time to really see the sun wake up! That's your mystery! See if you can put your finger on the trouble and eradicate it. Though, of course, 'twill be really very hard for all of you to do so, because since none of you are the leastest bit lazy (and I just know that you aren't) why, how on earth can you imagine what Cousin David feels like? Poor David, I guess there's nothing to be done for him.....alas.

But, to come back to the "Boy-who-is-just-so-high".....he lives next door, and sometimes I see him just after supper and before bedtime...and do you know that's the time he loves best, because he curls up on a funny old rug, and makes curly-wigs and frogs that croak (not really, just in his mind, y'know) and funny things that he calls griffins (he's never seen a griffin, and so I don't tell him that the pretty, graceful little fairy folk he moulds are not griffins) and when he has made them all out of plasticene of all colours, he strings them out in a row, and then his little sister who isn't "so-high" yet, comes over and they make a story up about the things he has made. And if they find it hard to work a griffin and a frog and a tulip and a motor car, all into one story, why they close their eyes and go to sleep, and dream the rest of the story before they wake up! Which is quite a good way.....I should think. What say you?

Cousin Judith.

Dearest Cousin Judith:

I have not written now for some time, but I hope you will forgive me.

I certainly think that the new competition is sure to be very interesting. I would like to enter, if I find my imagination vivid enough.

Esther Raport's suggestion about the photos is very good, but I would be too shy to have mine published (you know all Primroses are shy). I have another suggestion. It would be nice if you printed all the names of the members of the Junior Section. I would like to know how many members we have belonging to the Junior Section.

I will now have to close, even though my letter is shorter than I desired it to be, as I am not in the mood for writing, because I am trying to think up something for the contest.

With best wishes to you, Cousin David, and the rest of the cousins.

I remain, lovingly yours,

"Primrose."

Dear Shy Primrose:

Naturally, I prefer a long letter to a short one; that goes without saying. But...and...there always is a but... when you give such a very good excuse, there is nothing for me to do but forgive you! But see that your competition entry is most awfully interesting. We're going to follow your suggestion.. that is, if the cousins co-operate.

Did you enjoy your school vacation? I like vacations, especially in the spring. So much so, that only the other day I decided that I wanted a holiday, and went searching for pussy willows. Now, I've never gone looking for pussy willows before, and I had an idea that all I had to do was to walk along the road, until I heard a soft "Meow." Perhaps the pussy willows were too young to "meow," or it may be that they just didn't want to be taken away from their nice comfy swamp. How were they to know that I wasn't going to hurt them, but was going to give them the place of honour in a very lovely earthenware vase? . . . The fact remains that I hied me home minus pussy willows; but I don't really care. . . you see. If I can't have them, I shall go and get me some of those very funny red jiggers that look like dried pepper-poddy lanterns, but that are really Chinese lilies. And I wish you could all see how very lovely that vase will look.

Judith.

As you have written in April 4 issue about my story, and why it was not written, I would like to correct one mistake, Cousin David. My name is not Harry, but Himie.

As to the book nook's that Bepest made up, I can quite understand. I would like to ask Bepest in what library I can get Australian and Jewish cousins. I have also entered the Book Nook, and I am very busy thinking them up. The school ought to thank you because it makes the boys think (that's what they don't do in school). I wish, Cousin Bepest, you will answer my question in the next week's issue. Ta ta, old kid Bepest.

Dear Cousin Bepest and Cousin David. You all wish to keep the cousins together, so I am trying to accomplish something. I will get a room in Zionist Hall for all Toronto cousins to meet in at certain days. Please put down an ad in the Review, that we should meet in the hall, and after that have regular meetings. It will help keep the cousins together. You can choose the date and time. I think Saturday night or Sunday night. If you agree answer in this Friday's issue. If I get the answer (yeas) yes, I will get a room in the hall, and give you notice. Do not forget to answer my question. Excuse my writing, because I had to do it in my spare time in school. Ta ta, dear cousin friends.

From your cousin,
H. Dime.

I hope to write again soon.

BOOK-LOVER'S NOOK

"The Merchant of Venice," "The Bible," "Captain Dan's Daughter," "Bessie at School," "II English Prose," "The Spanish Gypsy," "Sowing Seeds in Danny," "Arabian Knights," "The Greig Family," "Little Women," "Frank Merriwell (Masked)," "Treasure Island," "Olive Twist," "Jewish Rabbis."

Dear Himie (most especially NOT Harry—as per orders):

Thanks for your Passover "thoughts." How about entering the contest? If you hurry, you may still be in time!

Perhaps Bepest will answer your question about "Australian and Jewish Cousins," as I don't know. I showed your letter to a school marm friend of mine, and when she got to the part about boys not thinking in school, she laughed and said, "Oh! but they do. . about all the different things they are NOT supposed to." So there you are!

Do you know, Himie, I'm afraid we are not quite ready to meet in any particular place, just yet. It would be rather good fun, and perhaps one of these days we'll call upon you to arrange a meeting for us, but in the meanwhile, don't you think it's ever so much more exciting and mysterious to get acquainted via the letter route only. Ye Maker of Limericks has an idea that you would like, and he is going to tell you all about it some day soon. Come again.

Cousin David.

THE COMING TO CANADA

CHAPTER II

Many years have passed and we see on the deck of a large steamer a beautiful little girl apparently about twelve years old. [illegible] to brothers, who await her in the little town seventy-five miles from Winnipeg.

On her face is a look of sorrow intermingled with one of joy and happiness. The look of sorrow was caused by the death of her dear grandmother with whom she had always been a favourite.

At Quebec little Ida by her sweet winning ways soon made many fast friends. She stayed in Canada's oldest city a week and learned much of the mysteries of the English language. At the end of the week she set out for her Manitoba home, much thrilled by the vast prairies that lay between the village in Manitoba and Quebec.

In the thriving town of Winnipeg in 1889, Mr. Wood found work as tutor to the few children there. For some time he taught, but soon gave up that profession.

A new village was being made about seventy-five miles from Winnipeg. Mr. Wood peddled goods in this new village. Soon he established a general merchant store there. It was to this village that Ida came.

Great joy, happiness and contentment reigned in the little house at the end of a street in a Manitoba village. Each child tried to do something about the house that would show the great love he bore the dear eldest sister. Everyone was in everybody's way.

Father was at the station when the train on which Ida was travelling, reached the village where her new home was. Quick as a flash Mr. Wood held Ida close in his arms and never let her go until they reached home. The children were wild to see their sister, but Mrs. Wood, with her sweet gentle ways, showed by every movement that she was almost bursting with joy to see her dear eldest daughter.

THE WAY TO SUCCESS

"The secret of success," the stamp said, "is sticking to it."

"To succeed," said the knife, "be bright and sharp."

"Keep up to date," said the calendar.

"Aspire to greater things," said the nutmeg.

"Don't knock—it's old fashioned," said the electric bell.

"Do a driving business," said the hammer.

And the barrel added, "Never lose your head."

"Make light of everything," the fire answered cynically.

"But always keep cool," said the ice.
